

How to choose your cover amount

A Step by step Guide

But First: Why Pet Insurance is important

Oh no, not another expense, right? Thing is, anyone who's ever had to pay a vet bill will tell you that today it's absolutely vital to have some sort of financial plan for your pets. (Seriously, pets get up to the strangest things and vets cost a lot!) Not to mention, they're just as susceptible to disease as humans – including chronic conditions, which cost even more to treat.

Pet insurance is just that: a financial fallback if anything happens to your fur babies.

When deciding on how much cover your pet requires, It is important to take into consideration, Breed and your affordability. These aspects will have a direct impact on the amount of cover required against Vet expenses.

1

BREED

Every breed of pet comes with their own list of potential health problems however some breeds suffer from health issues more common than others.

It is important that you as a pet owner are aware of common health problems for your chosen breed of pet.

2

AFFORDABILITY

Insurance should not be a financial burden. Choose the cover amount that fits your budget. It is better to have some cover than no cover in situation where your pet visits the vet.

Good to know

Annual limit

The annual limit represents the maximum benefits you, the policy holder, can enjoy each year of insurance. This limit resets annually.

Lower limits

Lower limits are more affordable, but do increase the chances of there being a shortfall in your insurance payout for claims.

The cost

The cost of pet healthcare is substantial and should not be underestimated. Please consult your veterinarian specialist for any specific details surrounding possible costs of healthcare
